Question: What were the strongest qualities of the course?
Response Rate: 80.00% (4 of 5)
1 The class was effective as an entry-level graphic design class. I learned a lot through class interactions, discussions, and hands-on learning. The creative freedom was difficult to embrace at first, but gradually became my favorite part of the course.
2 Great Interaction among students and professor.
3 I learned how to use Adobe InDesign and create projects that will be very helpful in my future! I also was moved to look into getting a major or minor in Graphic Arts, as I really enjoyed this class.
4 Allowed us to come up with designs and our own creative styles.

1 More judgement towards the grading of design and more in-depth directions.

2	more lessons!
3	Working on the project while in class seemed to help me verses doing it over the weekend. Also, anytime we had a similar version to look at and generate ideas helped a huge amount.
4	To be more in depth in the directions that described the assignments.

Question: What suggestions would you offer the instructor to improve the course?
Response Rate: 33.33% (2 of 6)
1 Make students critique more. It is odd to have the graphic majors/minors to critique those that are non-majors/minors, but that's the whole point in learning from peers and feedback in general. The class is always quiet. Feelings may get hurt but I doubt that. The critiques just need to be done in a professional manner and carried out completely in the same manner.
2 More understanding of the text book we use.

Question: What were the strongest qualities of the course?
Response Rate: 50.00% (2 of 4)
1 The discussion posts on tignet were useful, but try to keep them related to what we are learning. It is nice to see that the things we learn about in the classroom in fact happen in our everyday lives.
2 Being able to ask Professor Herges any questions at any time and receiving his feedback on assignments.

Faculty: Herges, Kyle N
Question: What suggestions would you offer the instructor to improve the course?
Response Rate: 25.00% (1 of 4)
1 I would suggest trying to find new teaching methods. The demonstration "as we go" type method is great for hands on experience but I think the students could gain better knowledge and understanding for the course by using different teaching methods. Also, I would maybe get a simplified book. The InDesign bible was really overwhelming.
